

CHEREVICHKIOTVICHKI
FOR Yohji Yamamoto

January, 2020

Layered looks and uneven patchworks were one of the many starting points to create this season's collaboration pieces between Cherevichki-otvichki and Yohji Yamamoto.

For Fall 2020 Homme collection Andrejeva looked to the language that Yamamoto builds with his designs. The language built can often be seen as obscure and poetic but with each season the language does not always become clearer. The layers keep on building and different elements continue to structure a dialect that is both complex and appreciated but never fully understood creating a necessity for more.

These complexities were something that Andrejeva translated into her design. The use of uneven lines and asymmetry on the utilitarian shoe and boot models. Both being made in a black heavily waxed leather, resulting in a unique answer to Yohji Yamamoto's conceptual complexities.

The collaboration pieces will be exclusively available in the Yohji Yamamoto stores and selected boutiques worldwide in July 2020.
